

THE EASTERN EYFS CONFERENCE

WEDNESDAY 2 JULY 2025
THE ENTERPRISE CENTRE, UEA

Join us to explore co-regulation, therapeutic play and speech sounds difficulties in the Early Years.

We know children are joining our settings with complex emotional needs, communication challenges, and behaviours reflecting their inner worlds. They need calm, connected adults offering empathy, consistency, and care. At this Eastern EYFS conference, join us to discover the latest insights and practical strategies to address these issues.

KEYNOTE

Cultivating Calm through Co-regulation – Tamsin Grimmer

Explore the crucial role of co-regulation and a loving pedagogy in supporting children's behaviour, building resilience and fostering wellbeing. We'll examine the transformative power of a loving pedagogy, emphasising emotionally rich and supportive environments.

WORKSHOPS

Therapeutic Play in the Early Years – Clare Lord

A session on Play Therapy, encompassing its theoretical foundations, relevant neuroscience, and its application. Participants will gain a deeper understanding of play's therapeutic power in supporting children's mental health and well-being, alongside practical insights into therapeutic adult responses.

Speech Sound Difficulties in Early Years – Hannah Bedford, Communicate

This training session equips educators with practical strategies to address the top five speech sound challenges in Reception. It will explore age-appropriate interventions, engaging activities, and collaborative approaches.

Co-regulating with Love – Tamsin Grimmer

This workshop will explore what nurturing self-regulation looks like in practice, with a strong focus on the practical implementation of co-regulation in supporting their children to develop emotional control, and resilience.

ALSO hear from local EYFS practitioners about their practice, with a panel discussion led by Jude Twani. A fantastic opportunity to connect with other practitioners across the region who share your passion and purpose.

Join us for a powerful opportunity to connect with a shared mission: to give every child the very best start.
